ICSK KHAITAN CELEBRATES EARTH DAY

"We do not inherit the earth from our ancestors, we borrow it from our children."

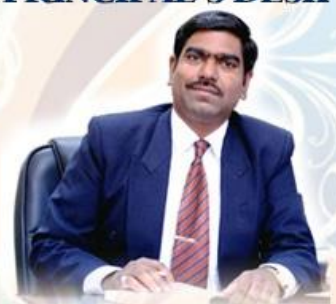

With this theory in our mind the students of class VIII B conducted their class Assembly to celebrate 'Earth Day'. The event began with the recitation of verses from the Holy Quran followed by an inspiring thought for the day and a beautiful poem on the significance of Earth Day.

Dear Students,

FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

Welcome to the new academic year 2015-16. The first issue of 'e-Vents' is ready to depict your first phase of the New Year and we are immensely delighted to share it with all to showcase this successful beginning. Let me congratulate the team 'e-Vents' for their sincere hard work and perseverance in publishing it on time.

The first two months have been remarkable in seeing your sincere involvement in all activities for the enthusiasm of studying in a new class must be a great motivation. Hearty Congrats! The 'e-Vents' portrays it vividly. Please go through it thoroughly and enjoy.

As you would be eagerly waiting for summer vacation, I wish you all a great time with lots of fun and relaxation. You may be in a mood to spend it with enjoyment and might have planned lots of plays, travel, movies etc., you should also try to utilize each of these activities for your self-development. You may feel the vacation assignments as a burden, but do not look at it that way. Rather, take it as keeping friendship with your books. Since you have got a long vacation and if you do not keep friendship with your books, your lessons may not recognize you after vacation. And what if they forget you once you are back in school? You know the RESULT then! So, make your time table such to keep in touch with your books in doing assignments for minimum one hour a day. You have still enough time left for learning other things like music, dance, lose/gain weight, reading books, visiting the places of your interest etc. Those who are going India can try to learn new things by visiting places or studying life and culture of our great diverse nation. Being a student, you should try to utilize this period maximum for new learning or pursuing hobbies which you can't do during school days.

You should also take care of your health and do not expose yourselves to any unsafe conditions. You must help your parents too in their work as this is the only time you can share their work and spare time for them which you may not be able to do during school days. Students of secondary classes can join some camps to learn study techniques or increase their concentration power. Try to keep away from all digital games which will just waste your time.

There is a special holiday assignment from me to you, especially to all of those above class II. And that's... to reply me by mail to the same email-ID by which you've received this e-magazine. It should be your own reply acknowledging the copy of 'e-Vents' and you may write further something relevant... I'm waiting for it! As we too will be missing you during vacation, let's try to communicate this way.

I would like to convey my sincere gratitude to the management for their overwhelming support in all our endeavours and appreciate once again the work of editorial team in bringing this issue for us.

Thanks to all once again...
HAPPY HOLIDAYS!!!

The power point presentation enhanced the skit. This was followed by songs. There was a scintillating dance recital where the children danced to the golden melodies of 1950s and a solo song 'Mere Sapno Ki Rani...' to commemorate the contemporary era. The highlight was an oath taking administered by the Principal, eliciting loyalty to the Alma Mater. He also congratulated all the participants and wished everyone a Happy 57th Foundation Day. ICSK KHAITAN CELEBRATES WORLD BOOK DAY

DAY

Books are the treasure trove of knowledge. This dictum literally came true when ICSK Khaitan celebrated World Book Day on 23rd April 2015. Wherever our world stands today is not a mystery, but just a history hibernating in the pages of wonderful books while the world grumbles over the fact that 'reading is on its death bed' due to the severe attack of social media and gadgets, the young learners at ICSK Khaitan gave life to famous literary characters. They brought them back to the sprawling campus through a fabulous Fancy Dress show held on the same day to make the students aware of and get acquainted with them. Famous characters like Cinderella, Sherlock Holmes, Hardy Boys, Little Women and many more came to life. The enthralling journey done by the students through the pages of English literature elevated the spectators to another realm and availed a window to look into the invigorating lives of Mark Twain, Charles Dickens, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Enid Blyton, J.K.Rowling and many more who added extensive chapters to English literature through their subtle and illumined creativity and imagination.

The Principal Mr. K.G.Shirsath addressed the gathering and his inspiring speech emphasized the glory of reading and how books can become our best friends in this hectic world where everyone lives in isolated compartments. He appreciated such live celebration of world book day by the school librarian Mrs. Shaheen Khan who made this possible. Children were highly attracted and motivated to read more books and witness their help in real life. It was a phenomenal day for ICSK Khaitan. The campus was made highly vibrant with the legendary characters roaming around from the world of fiction, enabling the students to soar up on flights of fancy.

ICSK KHAITAN CONDUCTS ORIENTATION FOR LKG PARENTS

The orientation programme was conducted at ICSK, Khaitan for the parents of the new LKG batch of 2015-2016 on 9 April 2015. Principal Mr. K. G. Shirsath welcomed the parents and advised them on taking the required care when children step into school first time in their life. Vice Principal Dr. Mary Isaac introduced the teachers to parents and a power point presentation with lots of tips were given by the counselor Mrs. Shiny Susan Shabu on preparing the child for attending the school. The parents too voiced their doubts and concerns and enjoyed the session as it fulfilled all their needs of understanding. The parents were distributed books, I-cards and other necessary things to begin the child's first schooling experience. The programme was a grand success as the parents felt assured that their wards would be in caring hands.

'DON'T SURRENDER BEFORE THE LIMITATIONS OF LIFE'

We may have certain limitations in our life which are blocking our way to progress although we wish to progress. Please note that all these limitations are with us according to the law of Karma or the law of destiny. No one is to blame for this except we ourselves because of our past actions. So there is no point in cursing oneself or God or others.

I had a dream
A beautiful dream
A dream of joy, a dream of love.
A dream where there is no pain,
no sorrow
No harm, no envy, but only love.
What a beautiful dream.

I had a dream
A beautiful dream.
A dream where there is no war
But only love, love for all mankind
Love between families, love between neighbours
Love between friends and love between countries
What a beautiful dream.

I had a dream
A beautiful dream
I wish it was true,
As my heart said so.
I can see that innocent love and trust
Behind that ego everyone has
Trust me, let go of that ego
And watch my dream come true.
I had a dream, a beautiful dream.

MOTHER

Mothers are precious.
Without them where would we be?
Mothers are tireless
Care for things whatever time it may be.

Mothers are faithful
They are where need be
Mothers are prayerful
Trusting God for every child's safety

Mothers are strong
Doing things with strength extraordinary
Mothers are gentle
Kissing away every wound we bear

Most of the mothers are caring
No matter how stubborn or hyper
Or playful or difficult we are
She loves us just the same, simply for who we are.

The Sinking Sun

The Sinking Sun,
The orange sky,
Birds retiring to their nest,
Announced the arrival of dusk.
Amidst the tranquil sea,
Alone fisherman waved triumphantly from a small boat,
That danced to the wavy tunes on the shores,
A girl's cheeks rosed with joy,
At the sight of her father return safely,
After a duel with death.

Alone

I lie alone amidst the shadows
No one for me to share my sorrows
Left alone by family, loved ones and all
Kicked out from everywhere like a football
I too used to have a family I loved
With children, grandchildren, my house was stuffed
Together we lived in love and peace
In my large house, surrounded by trees
I too lived happily without any misery
Until came the black day of treachery
When kith, kin and all whom I loved
Me, into solitude thrown
Loved I was by everyone yesterday
Mind me not one in my new home today
Meet I did many who shared my fate
But none did I meet in a happy state
Live we do in memories of the past
To rid our minds, from the present to which we've been cast
We lie all alone shadows of our former selves
Discarded and ruined like old books on shelves

My Grandmother

My favourite Grandmother,
She is too old,
But she thinks that,
She is so young.
She is so lovely,
She is so friendly,
She is too playful,
And she is so happy.
But she is just my favourite.
She likes to play with,
Young children like me,
I like to sleep on her lap.
She is so humble,
She is so simple,
She is so helpful,
But she is just my favourite.
She is a great teacher,
Great math's teacher,
She is as friendly as a book.
She has been my companion,
She has been my supporter,
She has been my advisor,
She has been everything,
From my very childhood.
But she is just my favourite.
She is as cool as a cucumber,
She is as tall as a skyscraper,
She is as beautiful as a peacock,
Her voice is as sweet as honey,
She is as old as gold,
She is as innocent as a giraffe,
She is as cute as a baby,
She is so precious for me,
She is as precious as a diamond,
She never wastes time,
She is so hard working
But she is just my favourite.

Save trees,
They are in danger
Or if you don't
You are in danger.

Plant more trees,
If you want to live
Or if you don't,
Get ready to die.

A PERFECT WINTER

It was a brilliant day, brilliant against the cloudless sky. The sun warmed her face but the air was icy in her nose and her throat dry. She knew it was something she had been longing for months. It was a perfect day for camping, for families taking their children to park and enjoying the few days before the snow comes pouring down. As she walked towards her office, her mind kept drifting back to what she saw on her way. The walk towards her office was pleasant but by the time she reached her office, her face was pale but there was a warmth that made her eyes shine bright.

On her way back home, she decided to stop near the park. It was just like any other day in Paris and as she sat on the bench in the park, she became nostalgic and began thinking about her life ten years ago. It was a beautiful day in Paris when she first arrived there. She would have never thought how her life would change in a few months. At first she was reluctant to leave her parents and go to a completely new country all by herself. She didn't even know French when she arrived but all of this changed in the course of time. "Being new in Paris and not knowing how to communicate with anyone is my biggest problem" she thought to herself. But she knew that Paris, the city of love had something in store for her. As days went by, she grew more comfortable with everything. She didn't miss her parents but always felt empty without them.

There was always one thing she did everyday, walk to the nearest park and reflect on her life. Just as she was thinking about these things, she heard someone call her name. 'ANNA!!' she saw someone running towards her. 'ANNA! 'I've been calling you the entire day. Where have you been?' She smiled realizing that it was her husband calling her. "I was just thinking about everything, how drastically my life had changed over these 10 years". "Sitting in the park and thinking about your life? Awesome". She rolled her eyes at him and smiled.

He then continued "Okay, let's go. I am tired". She got up and walked towards him, put her hand in his hand and smiled. "It's cold", she said. "Then let's get out of here". And they walked away

THE DISGUISED VISITOR

by
AYISHAH WAFIYATH - 8-C

Once there was a village named 'Anugrah' (blessing) in the district of Tynoor. It derived its name because of the blessings, they believed, God had given to the village. It had wonderful trees, colourful flowers, green grass, blue sky, and many more. The village was a perfect description for heaven. People living there were very happy, good minded, well mannered, religious, pious people, with no bad habits at all. They were also friendly to each other.

In that very village lived Tara and Manasa, two sisters who were the daughters of Ravi and Mali. Tara and Manasa were well known among the villagers, for their good manners, unbeatable intelligence and will power.

One year in the beautiful village where it always rained it did not experience rain fall. All the villagers were surprised. It continued for months and soon the village was suffering from drought. Trees were dying and flowers were no more to be seen. The people had very little to eat. But the tamarind tree stood tall in the drought. A man wearing a suit came and took shelter under the tamarind tree. He looked very tired and fell asleep. Tara and Manasa was passing by the tree and they spotted this man. They were quite astonished to see a man wearing a suit in their village where the people were poor and could not afford to buy something so costly.

Suddenly the man woke up and called out to them, he said, "Oh, my dear girls I did not have anything to eat from morning. Will you give me something to eat?" Tara and Manasa didn't want to let the traveler go hungry nor did they want to give their food which was very little and only enough for their family. They did not know what to do.

Tara and Manasa stood thinking for a long time. After a little while Tara came up with an idea, she said, "Let's give our share of the food to this tired and hungry man, he looks very weak. And nothing would happen to us if we don't eat for a day and if we do a good deed God might save us from this punishment". And Manasa quiet agreed with the idea but she was not sure if the man was lying or not, because a man with such good clothes would never be out of money, she thought . But she agreed to the plan. They told the man to wait for a while and that they would return with food. Tara also requested the man to please not go anywhere till they returned. And Tara and Manasa came back the way they came, to their house.

Manasa managed to take their food without making a single sound and Tara managed to take water the same way. They packed it neatly and walked towards the door of their house and slowly opened it and not even a 'cling' was heard But the moment the door was opened Tara's and Manasa's mouth hung open. All the trees were back. The flowers were blooming. The grass was green. The lake was filled with water. The sky had black rain clouds.

They took the packed food and ran to the tamarind tree under which they had seen the man in the suit. When they reached they were even more surprised to see that instead of the man with the suit there stood something that they could not explain with words. It glowed like the sun yet it felt very nice to look at. It was colourful like rainbows and smelled like roses and jasmynes. Then it spoke and its voice was better than the sound of birds singing, better than the sound of rivers flowing. It was the sweetest voice that they ever heard.

"I'm God" the voice said, "this village was blessed by me until one day I came in the same disguise as you saw me and asked a villager for water, but he didn't give me, He was selfish. I asked a bird to sing a song but he didn't hear me, He was selfish. I asked the river for water but it didn't give me, It was selfish. They thought that they could live like that for ever, and that's why I took the blessing I had given this village except from the Tamarind tree, for he alone had given me what I asked. But today you gave me what I wanted even though you had less. And for that you have been blessed again. You must never be selfish and greedy, and you, Tara and Manasa have laid a good example. You must pass on this message to the whole world. Your places have been assured in heaven".

And with this, God disappeared and in his place was a package in which it was written 'for Tara and Manasa for their good heart'. And from that day they started spreading the message of God.

My Naughty Little Sister

My naughty little sister, tall and thin.
She is very cute and bubbly to see.
She irritates me and troubles me,
but I will show a little smile.
My little naughty sister. My little naughty sister.
She flies around and roams around,
But will show a little cute smile.
She is just seven years old, but acts like an aunt.
I love my little sister.
She loves to see horror movies, which makes her scared,
But will cry and come to me whatever happens.
She's a bit naughty and a little silly.
But she makes me laugh.
She hates to go to school, but loves to play.
She loves to sing but hates to dance.
She always lights my dark life,
And makes me very happy.
She's a little cute kiddo, but her smile makes me fall.
She's the cutest in my family,
Who is totally different from all.
I love my sister, I love my sister
She's my one and only cute sister.

Values in our Life

by

Megha Johnson - VII-C

Values are principles, standards or qualities we consider worthwhile or desirable. Knowing our personal values is extremely important because those values shape everything about us. Values are an unlimited source of inner power that energizes them to no end; driving them to the heights of success, while bringing about deep fulfillment in their lives. Values guide us and shape our priorities and reactions. They serve as our markers to tell if we are heading in the right direction and if it is out turning out the way we want it to. Dalai Lama once said, "Open your arms to change, but don't let go off your values. Regardless, if we know them or not, values do naturally exist. Our lives can become less stressful, and more productive, when we acknowledge our personal values.

These values are the most important in our life: Appreciation, Belief in others, Caring, Commitment, Compassion, Co-operation, Courtesy, Dedication, Devotion, Effort, Forgiveness, Friendship, Gratitude, Honesty, Hope, Integrity, Listening, Love, Optimism, Patience, Respect, Right choices, Sacrifice, Tolerance, Unity and Vision

When our actions and words are aligned with our values, life will become generally good and comfortable and we feel confident, content and satisfied. But, when our behaviors don't match up with our values, we will soon sense an uneasiness, which will swell and grow inside of us.

WISDOM

by
NAVEEN SANI

Once upon a time there lived a poor farmer. He had a field with a huge and strong tamarind tree in the middle. His crops were destroyed due to drought except for this tree. He used to sit in the shade of this huge tree to protect himself from the sun. One day he began to feel very thirsty but his well had no water in it. So he went in search of water with the twenty rupees he had.

After traveling a long distance he found a hut and knocked at the door. An old man came and opened the door. The farmer asked for water. The old man told the farmer that he didn't have water but had some wisdom to sell for money. Now the farmer gave him his twenty rupees to get wisdom. TWO IS BETTER THAN ONE. EAT ANYTHING ONLY AFTER GIVING IT TO THE DOG. LOOK UNDER THE COT BEFORE YOU SLEEP ON IT. YOU MAY LOSE SOMETHING IF YOU SLEEP. The old man said this and closed the door.

The farmer again started to walk. Now he saw a tortoise starving for water. Remembering the old man's wise words TWO IS BETTER THAN ONE he took the tortoise with him. After some time he saw a lake and threw the tortoise in it. Then he drank some water from the lake. Now the tortoise brought a diamond from the lake. He kept the diamond with him and continued on his way.

After some time the farmer saw a wicked lady's inn. She used to kill people for money. Without knowing this the farmer went inside and asked her for food and water. She gave him poisoned food. Now remembering the old man's words EAT SOMETHING ONLY AFTER GIVING IT TO THE DOG, he gave some food to the street dog. The dog died within seconds. So he did not eat the food.

Now the lady asked him to sleep. Thinking old man's words LOOK UNDER THE COT BEFORE YOU SLEEP ON IT he looked under the cot to find a big hole. So he sat in the corner of the room to sleep. Remembering old man's words YOU MAY LOSE SOMETHING IF YOU SLEEP, he did not sleep. Now he saw the lady coming with a knife to kill him and take away the diamond. He jumped and run away from that inn. He sold the diamond and became very rich. Now he could dig a deeper well and purchase a motor to fetch water and irrigate the crops. He and his crops never faced any shortage of water after that. Thus purchased wisdom saved the farmer. So we should study well to gain wisdom.

Enjoy Holidays.. Stay Safe.. Stay Healthy..

Dear Children,

We are at the verge of starting another summer vacation, happy and pleased about the way we began the new session and excited to wind up for holidays. There is a tendency among all of us to slightly backslide in our routine work during holidays. Pages of vacation assignment have reached you already. Assignments are so designed that we want you to have a very creative and enjoyable summer. Keep in mind that the marks for holiday assignment (10 marks) are counted towards FA2. 90% topics are completed for SA1. When you come back FA2, Model Exam (classes IX&X) and SA2 will approach one after another. After school reopens there is very less time left for revision. Keep revising all subjects with an appropriate time table.

- Plan well and allot time and number of days to complete all work.
- Assign a time slot during the day to do holiday assignment/revision.
- It is difficult to start a task but once you start doing you will find it easy & enjoyable.
- Seek help from parents if the task requires their help.
- When things start working as per your plan you will feel happy and continue working.
- Finish your assignments/revision as per blueprint and enjoy the holidays.
- Stay healthy and safe. Avoid dangerous adventures.

Come back happily after completing all work and thoroughly prepared for upcoming tests and exams. Submit your holiday assignment on the very first day you are in school. Let us be back together physically and intellectually stronger and ready to face any challenges lying ahead of us in this academic year.

Have an enjoyable summer vacation!

*Regards,
Dr. Mary Isaac
Vice Principal*
